Robert Miller, who was convicted in the circuit court of Reynolds county at the November term, 1913, of the charge of murder in the first degree and given a life sentence in the penitentiary, has been paroled by Acting Governor Painter. Miller is paroled to C. R. Wadlow, of Centerville, who was prosecuting attorney at the time of his conviction. The parole was granted on the certificate of a prison physician that Miller was afflicted with tuberculosis. The terms of the parole are that Miller must abstain from intoxicating liquors and must report regularly to Mr. Wadlow. It is further provided that he may be returned to the penitentiary on the restoration of his health. Miller was convicted of the murder of Richard Mallon, an old man, who was found shot to death, near the Gallaher farm, on Middle Fork, in August, 1913. The evidence was all circum-stantial. The Centerville Outlock says there is great dissatisfaction ov-er the Governor's action. From Saturday evening's St. Louis Post-Dispatch: "Mrs. Wm, H. Thom-son, of 3805 Lindell boulevard, wife of the vice president of the Boatmen's Bank, returning to the city on a par-lor car of a Wabash train discovered when the train reached Delmar sta-tion at 8:15 A. M. Thursday that her handbag, containing her diamonds, had been stolen. Hasty search was made while the train was at the station without result. Mrs. Thomson left the train and went to her home. She inserted advertisements in the newspapers offering a reward for the return of the handbag and contents, and notified the police. About 7:30 o'clock Harry Hacker, of 2705 Osage, an employe of the Bell Telephone Co., and a fellow employe went to a clump of bushes beside the Wabash track, pear Union bouleyard, north of Fornear Union boulevard, north of For-est Park, to change their working clothes. Among the bushes they found a handbag and on opening it were surprised to discover that it contained diamonds. They saw Mrs. Themson's advertisement and returned the hadbag to her, with the con-tents intact. They were told that the diamonds were worth many thous-ands of dollars. They were given $190 reward. It is supposed that the hand-bag was stolen before the train reached Delmar station and the thief, fear-ing that there might be a search at Union Station, threw it from the train into the clump of bushes after it left Delmar station, expecting to return and get it.
